“Bridge helped me gain my confidence back”

Cassie’s a bubbly, outgoing and kind mother-of-two living in the western suburbs. Her laugh is contagious, she lights up at the mention of her daughters Chloe and Cayden, and she’s passionate about her job helping cancer patients.

You’d never know that, just three years ago, she and her girls escaped from a traumatic life of domestic violence, leaving them homeless.

“I went through a really bad transition when leaving my ex-husband, because it was a domestic situation,” Cassie remembers. “I'd lost myself, and thought I was a failure. And at the time, my credit was shot. I wasn’t able to get anything in my name—not a credit card, not an apartment, nothing. My kids and I had nowhere to go, and I felt so scared and alone.”

They crashed with some relatives willing to take them in temporarily, but “it was a tight situation,” and Cassie was desperate to find long-term stability so her family could heal. A friend from high school suggested she call Bridge Communities, and after a series of interviews, she was welcomed into the program.

Cassie was relieved to find safety in her new Bridge home, but admits there were some initial mixed feelings. “In my adult life, I'd never had anyone tell me what to do with my money, and at first I thought, 'I can't do this, there are too many rules, it's too hard,” says Cassie.

“But one day, my grandmother said, 'Bridge is there to help...continued on page 2

you, not hurt you. And this is all to better you and your children.’ So I kept an open mind, I prayed a lot, and with the help of Bridge and my mentors, they guided me through.”

One of the first steps for Cassie’s family was dealing with trauma. She and her girls began domestic violence counseling right away—both in a group for kids and moms together, and through an art therapy class just for kids, which helped the girls express their pain through drawing. “Those courses helped us out a lot, and I found out a lot from my children that I hadn’t known they experienced during my marriage,” Cassie says. “You don’t realize all that you went through until you really see it in black and white.”

In fact, one of her daughters had suffered from post-traumatic stress disorder. “We went through stages when we were in our apartment, and my kids would always come to my door to ask, ‘Mom, are you okay? Are you okay?’ And I’d have to reassure them, and check on them, and check the cabinets, and look outside the front door,” she remembers.

Bridge connected her daughter to a psychologist from Samaracare, who helped the family work through the trauma and recover their sense of safety. “We came to know that we were in a safe environment, and that no one would ever hurt us again. That transition for us was the most important thing of all.”

Next up was a path to building a better future for their family. When Cassie first came into the Bridge program, she was saddled with a budget-breaking car payment of nearly $500 per month. Cassie and her mentors soon realized this would be a huge barrier for her to successfully save money. “My mentor Rich went to the dealership with me, and he ended up negotiating with them to get me out of my SUV that I’d gotten brand new, and I was able to lease a compact car for the much lower amount of $230 a month.”

Cassie continued to improve her budgeting skills, and later, when she went back to school and needed her budget to include her college fees, her mentors obtained a donated 2008 Honda Civic for her from their parish. “Now I own my car, and that is really a blessing,” she says.

Cassie considers her mentors—Rich, Barb, Ed and Donna from Daybreak of Lisle—to be the key reasons she was able to succeed. “I love them, and it was a great experience working with them,” she says. “They always went the extra mile to help me and my children.”

Her mentors also saw Cassie’s potential, and encouraged her to pursue her dream of completing her college degree over the next two years—although she knew it would be really difficult, as she already worked full-time. “Three nights a week, I went to class from 6 to 9 in the evening, and that was so challenging,” she says. “There were a lot of times that my girls and I were doing homework together, because I still had to be a mom and not neglect them. But we made it!”
Dear Friends,

It has been said that the spirit of Bridge Communities, this year celebrating now in our 30th year, is a tapestry of all the relationships forged over those years. I dedicate this space to the many thousands who have contributed to that spirit.

First, to co-founder Mark Milligan – the master relationship builder – who, along with co-founder Bob Wahlgren, had a vision and was able to draw in a small, but mighty group of people in 1988 to rent an apartment and support the first Bridge family. Mark and Bob both taught us all how to make relationships deeply personal.

Next, to our Program Partner leaders, who built the personal relationships to launch and sustain their ministries over the decades. And, to the thousands of volunteers, connected through personal relationships with our staff and client families, who made deep commitments to see families through the challenges of transitional housing. Our volunteers understood that all progress was possible only after the personal relationship had been solidified.

Then, to the very talented Bridge staff and boards of directors, who over many years built relationships with thousands of donors to help grow and strengthen the program. Very often, those donors were the first to reach out.

Finally, the best for last – the hundreds of Bridge families who had the wisdom and courage to ask for help. They forged relationships with us when we had been strangers to them, and seized the opportunity we offered to help them fulfill their dreams.

More than ever before, Bridge is well-positioned to face the challenges and seize the opportunities of an uncertain future. The tapestry of Bridge may change in color and texture, but it will forever be woven of relationships – our greatest asset.

Thirty Years of Relationships

This past April, Cassie graduated from Robert Morris University with her bachelors in business management. “I cried sitting in the seat at graduation, I cried walking across the stage, and I cried when I was reunited with my family after the ceremony,” she says. “For so long, I’d cried tears of sadness from going through everything before. But being in Bridge and working with my mentors made everything worth it in the end. That was gratification for me: to see my kids proud of their mom.”

Since graduating from college and Bridge Communities this spring, Cassie has moved into a three-bedroom townhouse, with a big yard for her girls. And at work, she’s been promoted from an entry-level patient registrar to a patient financial counselor, and helps cancer patients find funding for their treatment.

“I love my job because every day, I’m making a difference in somebody’s life,” she says. She’s continuing to budget and save like her mentors taught her, and aspires to work in management one day.

Cassie says that being in the Bridge Communities turned her life around. “Bridge built my self-esteem, and I came out of the shell I’d been in from feeling like I wasn’t good enough,” she says. “To gain my confidence back and take my life back, it made me a better mother, a better friend, a better daughter, and just a better person across the board. And I’m grateful.”
Q. How did you first become involved with Bridge Communities?
A. My husband Steve is a member of the Naperville Noon Lion’s Club. Vicky Joseph was the presenter at a weekly club meeting and talked about the need for Bridge’s Resource Closet. Vicky explained how the closet needs donations and the families can’t purchase cleaning and personal items with public aid. Our son was moving at the time, so we took the U-Haul that he used and went to Sam’s Club and purchased items for the closet.

Q. What do you do as a volunteer?
A. We soon began purchasing the items weekly for the Resource Closet. We are helping families so they can have a better life.

Q. What’s it your favorite Bridge memory?
A. On our wedding anniversary, there was a need for a kids bike and a big wheel for a Bridge family. We purchased the bike and the big wheel as a gift to each other. To see the kids ride their bikes around the street was the best gift I could ever receive.

Q. What’s the best thing about volunteering with Bridge Communities?
A. Everyone in life has struggle; however, you are giving people hope and an opportunity to better their lives. This is not a hand out—it is a helping hand.

Cleaning products or personal care items cannot be purchased with food stamps, and we rely on generous donors to help stock our resource closets for Bridge families. Please contact Vicky Joseph at (630) 207-0601 or vicky.joseph@bridgecommunities.org if you would like to donate!

Everyone at Bridge got a tear in their eyes when we received this note. Everything Bridge does is because of the support you give – YOU are changing lives!

We are grateful to the human resources department of Delta Dental of Illinois for going above and beyond for Bridge families! Lynn Filippelli, Delta Dental of Illinois’ Director of Human Resources, has been key to the successful employment of several Bridge clients since 2016.

“Mary Zienty and Dorothy Douglas of Bridge’s employment team met with us, and Bridge seemed like a program that’s really needed,” she said.

Lynn agreed to help by conducting mock interviews for job-seeking Bridge clients, but she also went one step further to assist in Bridge’s employment workshops. During each four-week session, she teaches clients not only how to interview and write a resume—but also how to recognize their skills and strengths, and gain a much-deserved boost in their confidence.

“You absolutely see how much more comfortable they become over those four weeks in talking about themselves, and their growth is just phenomenal,” says Lynn. “It’s very rewarding to see. I really enjoy working in HR, and to use my skills to help people has been a perfect fit.”

The true mark of the partnership’s success? Some Bridge job-seekers have even gone through the employment process at Delta Dental of Illinois, and have earned full-time positions on staff. Thank you, Lynn and the Delta Dental of Illinois team, for giving Bridge clients the opportunity to succeed!
Bridge Communities 30th Birthday Bash

Pearls, Posies & Surprises!

Join us to honor 30 years of homes and hope and honor the retirement of our beloved co-founder Mark Milligan on September 21 at the Bridge Communities 30th Birthday Bash!

We’ll be partying at The Planter’s Palette in Winfield, as their greenhouse will be transformed into “celebration central.” This festive night will feature raffles, auctions, food stations, cocktails, music, dancing and more as we thank Mark for his 30 years of leadership and philanthropy in DuPage County.

You won’t want to miss out on the party of the year! Tickets are limited—buy yours today at www.bridgecommunities.org.

The Bridge Communities Founders Fund

In honor of cofounders Mike Milligan and Bob Wahlgren, we’re proud to announce the creation of the Bridge Communities Founders Fund, an endowment designed to support the educational needs of high school-aged teens in Bridge families. When you donate to this fund, you’ll make sure that Bridge teens receive:

- Counseling regarding options for college, technical schools and vocational programs;
- ACT and SAT tutoring;
- Personalized help for teens and their parents to understand and apply for financial aid;
- Career assessment;
- And more.

“Graduating from high school calls for many decisions. Often, a Bridge family has little experience with either college or trade school, so this can be a very difficult time to move through,” says Mark. “Navigating this process can make the difference between a successful launch or continued poverty. And this will be the work of the Founders Fund.”

You can make Mark and Bob’s legacy last forever! Learn how you can change a Bridge teens future, and ask Resource Development Director Amy Van Polen about the Founders Fund today! Call 630-545-0610 x12 or e-mail amy.vanpolen@bridgecommunities.org to unlock their potential.

We believe all Bridge teens can achieve greatness, just like Steffi. Please join us in supporting the Founders Fund today to help Bridge teens on their path to success!
